'East meets West'

We travel from the east via Russia, Poland and Hungary, featuring music which depicts despair to jubilant praise, with some fun along the way. Straddling east and west is Tavener's mesmerising 'Song for Athene'. We continue westward with Schumann (four glorious part-songs) and thrilling pieces for double choir by Gustav Holst and Charles Wood. We meet up with Ralph Vaughan Williams also, in two contrasting pieces. Your journey starts with a ticket.

Holst	Nunc dimittis
Vaughan Williams	Silence and music
	Just as the tide was flowing
Kodály	Transylvanian lament
	Evening song
	See the gypsies
Schumann	To the stars
	Uncertain light
	Confidence
	Talismans
Górecki	Totally thine
Tchaikovsky	Praise the Lord
	'Tis not the cuckoo
Rachmaninov	We praise thee
Wood	Hail, gladdening light
Tavener	Song for Athene
